
Symposium: One Hundred Fifty Years of Oregon Constitutional Law: Reflecting Back and Looking Forward

On February 13, 2009, the Oregon Law Review and the Oregon State Bar Constitutional Law Section co-hosted a symposium entitled One Hundred Fifty Years of Oregon Constitutional Law: Reflecting Back and Looking Forward. A great many justices, judges, professors, and members of the bar gathered at the University of Oregon School of Law in Eugene to commemorate the sesquicentennial of Oregon statehood and to discuss the past and future of the state constitution. The articles in this issue serve to further that discussion.

The Oregon Law Review Editors wish to thank the several scholars who participated in the symposium, each of whom also contributed to this issue. We are grateful to Justice Hans Linde, Judge Timothy Sercombe, and Mr. Les Swanson for their assistance and support of this project from the very beginning. We also would like to acknowledge the contributions of Operations Editors John Wilson (2007–08) and Neal Bartlett (2008–09), who both were instrumental in making the symposium a great success.
